Indianapolis Wholesale Market.

The general market seems to be improving in its tone. Wheat is advancing, and is not by any means dull. Corn is in good deaand. Foreign fruits have advanced several cents per box in New York, and we note a similar advance in prices here. On 'change this' morning the offers and sales were light, but the feeling was more hopeful than it has been for several days—the reaction of the market from its recent depression.

ADDITIONAL CITY NEWS.

Rev. Harry Smith, of this city, has accept-od a call as pastor of the Baptist church at for three or four years past, has returned for permanent residence. Miss Amy E. Dunn, will make her debut as a lecturer before the Gordon literary club, next Monday evening. Marriage licenses were issued yesterday and to-day to Anthony J. Gerstner and Martha E. Smythe, Joseph David and Kate Moore.

The withdrawal of the card of Austin H. Brown, announcing himself as a candidate for the democratic nomination for clerk, does not mean that he has withdrawn from the contest. He will be in the convention. After being out seventeen hours the jury case of Willis Buckner, arrested as an accomplice of William Brodday, alias "Philadelphia Red," in the burglary of J. P. Dunn's residence, came into court this morning and were discharged, being unable to agree.

John Langdon and Chas. Ferdinand, of Rochester, were examined to-day by U. S. Commissioner Bixby, on a charge of counter-feiting trade dollars. In default of $1,000 bail each, they were committed to jail to await trial in the United States circuit court.

Mr. Jacob Huebner, the old brewer, who divides his time between the United States and Germany, will sail in the Oder, on the 27th inst., for the old country. Mr. Metzger, agent of the line, could find no passenger accommodations for him, but secured him an officer's berth.

Councilman Brown, who introduced the ordinance for the cutting off of two captains from the police force, finds more opposition to the project than he expected. There are about 15 candidates for the position vacated by the resignation of Murphy, and these gentlemen and their friends are rabidly opposed to the ordinance. Of course, There always to the ordinance. Of course. There always is opposition to saving the tax-payers

The ease of Lewis Veatch, who murdered his brother-in-law at Cumberland, this county, about three years ago, has again come before the supreme court on assignment for error. In his first trial he received a 21 years' sentence, and after serving over two years of his time was granted a new-trial, receiving a term of 15 years. The attorneys expect a new hearing and a still further reduction in time.

The Mozart string quartette, consisting of John Chislett, Charles K. and Wm. P. Kappes and George M. Newcomer, assisted by Misses Jo. Landis, N. Newcomer and Jessie Sharpe, and Messrs, Jillson and Edwards will give an invitation entertainment at the residence of A. E. Fletcher, to-morrow evening. This quartette of amateurs has made quite a rep-utation during the winter, and their enter-tainments, which are given at private resi-dences, have been a rich treat to those who were favored with invitations.

Death of Charles C. Campbell. At half past 11 o'clock this morning Mr. Charles C. Campbell, an old citizen, died at his residence on the corner of Illinois and Walnut streets, of paralysis of the air vessels of the lungs, after an illness of ten weeks. Mr. Campbell was one of the landweeks. Mr. Campbell was one of the land-marks of Indianapolis, his residence here be-ing contemporaneous with the entire history of the place. Born in Rockbridge county, Virginia, within a few miles of the natural bridge, Christmas day, 1808, he removed to this state in his early youth and arrived in Indianapolis in 1821. He followed the trade of a tailor, after arriv-ing at may's estate until he went into the ing at man's estate, until he went into the sheriff's office, in 1844, as deputy for Colonel Russell, Austin H. Brown's father-in-law. In 1846 and again in 1850, he was elected sheriff, serving until 1853—five years in all. During the administration of President Buchanan he was receiver of public moneys, Mr. George. McQuat being register of public lands at the same time. He also served as commissioner of the inserve heavital. of public lands at the same time. He also served as commissioner of the insane hospital during the administration of Gov. Willard, while Dr. Athon was superintendent of the institution. Since leaving these positions he has led a retired life, and to the younger members of society was almost unknown. His memory was very acute and accurate, and he was often sought in late years by attorneys desiring to learn the facts connected with early residents and their estates. their estates.

Mr. Campbell married Miss Mary Lake, Mr. Campoell married Miss Mary Lake, who, with four children, a daughter and three sons, survive him. The daughter is herself the widow of the late John Stout. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon.

The County Bonds.

During the winter, when the arrangements were made for the sale of $200,000 of county bonds, which were consummated during a bonds, which were consummated during a recess of the board of commissioners by Messrs. Remy and Rubush, it was announced that the sale would be made without expense to the county. The record of the board, however, shows a different state of facts. An allowance was made yesterday to Clarpool & Stoddard of $2,700, 1½ per cent. commission on the $180,000 disposed of. The board sold the bonds at 98 cents, and in addition to the discount of two per cent., allow 1½ per cent., commission and the accrued interest, so that the county really gets 95 cents for the bonds. That is the price offered by an Indianapolis banker in December, and Commisanapolis banker in December, and Commis-sioner Worman says an offer of 98 cents outright was also made, both of which were rejected. Mr. Worman objected to the allowance, but Rubush and Remy passed it, and then went off to view old worn out bridges. These commissioners probably think that by reducing the revenue in this manner, they will be better able to reduce expenses.

Arrest for Felonious Assault. Officers Case and Potts this afternoon arested James McCoy at the Pan Handle sh rested James McCoy at the Pan Handle shops, on the charge of committing a felonious assault upon Ella Lambert, a German servant girl residing on Massachusetts avenue, at Woodruff place last Thursday night. #### BEECHER-TILTON.

Beecher and his Agent Interviewed.

He Knew the Confession was Coming.

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 16.—Henry Ward Beecher was a passenger on the Erie road west this morning, from Waverly. All efforts to get an interview with him were unsuccess-ful. He went direct to his hotel after the lecture last night, and after the lecture last night, and refused to see any one connected with the press. He went from the hotel direct to the depot this morning. When the train stopped a reporter sought an interview, but Reecher refused to talk. A large crowd gathered about the car to catch a glimpse of him. He about the car to catch a glimpse of him. He lectures at Bath to-night.

ELMRA, N. Y., April 16.—Henry Ward Beecher is at the Rathburn house with his agent, J. B. Pond, of Boston. A reporter sought an interview and Beecher said "it will do you no good." The reporter then showed the morning papers and Beecher said: "I don't think that you have any more news than I have already received."

Pond his agent said the editonal

Pond his agent, said the editonal stating that the absence of Tilton showed he rond his agent, said the editional stating that the absence of Tilton showed he had nothing to do with preparing Mrs. Tilton's confession is absurd. The rumor of this arrangement to my personal knowledge has been known widely in the west for a long time, and Beecher has often been reminded of it. The charges of the Chicago Tribune of April 2nd in an editorial, foreshadows the coming confession and warned Tilton that any such attempt would not be welcomed by the public. It may be true that Tilton has not acted directly but that he acts through his son Carroll, no one acquainted with the affair will deny. At St. Louis and in Fort Wayne I was told Tilton had threatened that he would crush Beecher yet. I believe Beecher is convinced that Mrs. Tilton is now under the absolute control of her husband, that she loves him, and that this letter of confession is the price—she pays for reconciliation, the price she pays for reconciliation, and you will see they will be living together before three months roll around. Mr. Beecher then stated that for more than four years Mrs. Tilton had been denying the truth of what was called her original confession. In court, before the church and before committees the head esserted and before committees she had asserted her innoceace. This would more than offset anything she might say now. Her latest statement was instigated by her latest statement was instigated by a desire for a reunion with her husband, and was the price she paid for assecting the same. He said he would continue his course just the same, notwithstanding the renewal of the scandal.

If the men who call themselves "the republican party" will admit the validity of section 5 of the Cincinnati platform, which calls for an abatement of their office brokerage, acknowledge that President Hayes has been true to the promises they made for him, fall to and pass the repeal of the bankrupt act, aid resumption in all ways in their power, and give their help to making civil service reform a living principle, they will be in condition, in 1880, to do considerable

THE senate's repeal of the bankrupt law is likely to be followed by speedy and similar action in the house. The country should have a general bankrupt law, and it would be better to amend the present one and enforce it more carefully. But the temper of the times is in favor of its repeal and we shall go to the other extreme for awhile. The repeal as reported to-day goes into effect immediately, and those who contemplate bankruptcy had better jump at once or they may wake up soon and find the way shut.

IT was reported to the Methodist conference from a district that comprises the territory between Massachusetts and the Long Island line, that one of its churches that of West Granby, Connecticut, had been abandoned and the property lost; that eight distilleries had been started in the neighborhood, owned and managed by members of the church. Stewards of the church were also owners, and manufactured brandy and cider, and a trial of the most vehement one of the lot by the church resulted in his acquittal, eight of the church members appearing as his defenders. The pastor had received as his year's salary $199,44, part of which was in poor hay, the whole not sufficient to feed the horse he had to use in his work.

THE bill introduced by Mr. Kimmell, of Maryland, and referred to the house judiciary committee, to provide a mode for trying the title of president and vice president to their respective offices when their election thereto is denied by one or more states in the union, is in opposition to the desire of the people of this union without regard to party, except a few political agitators like Montgomery Blair and Bill Chandler, who are willing to make the nation the tool of their malignity and disappointment. The passage of such a bill and the beginning of action thereon would paralyze the business of the country as effectually as the dispute which ended in the electoral commission did. It would be a reopening of the same contest then settled, and would be an end to self-government, in that it would throw the gate open for a raid on the title of every president that may be placed in office. Suppose this bill should pass and the objections of the Maryland legislature to Hayes's title should make a case that would result in a trial and a verdict that Tilden was entitled to the office of president. Before he was in his seat, Massachusetts or any other state could pass a resolution questioning his title, and so it could go ad infinitum, and the president of the union be made a perpetual litigant, every one of his acts subiect to an overthrowal on an adverse decision. It would in short be a declaration of rebellion as vicious and unjust as the slave holders' rebellion, and made by the same men who made it. It should be promptly and effectually stamped out, and the politicians at Washington if they are wise will do it without any further instructions from the people. Life is liberty, industry and peace, not a perpetual quargel over

THE wretched Beecher-Tilton disgrace is dragged before the public again in a letter from Mrs. Tilton, in which she acknowledges the truth of Tilton's charges against Beecher, her "quickened concience, and a sense of what is due to the cause of truth and justice" being the cause of this acknowledgement. This testimony of Mrs. Tilton's, legally, is worth nothing, for if it be accepted as true, 'then she lied when - the scandal was broached, if she spoke truly then is lying now. How much her testimony is worth morally, need not concern any one we think. Opinions on the merits of the case were formed at the time of the trial. Few will be changed by this confession, and the whole affair can be bundled out of the pale of serious thought and discussion. The actors in it have surely paid for their sin, whether it was adultery on the one side, or envy, conspiracy and blackmail on the other. But anything any of them may do is to be taken with allowance, and if they should all get together and declare it was a swindle all around, we think the public would not be surprised. There has been so much centradiction, lying, perjury, septimental drivel and blasphemous cant evolved first and last, that it seems as if these people were not to be judged by the ordinary standard applied to humanity. The men wisest in the knowledge of human nature, and the lawyers most expert in the analysis of human testimony have alike been driven to sea on this matter. Within week, if the New York Tribune is to be believed; Mrs. Tilton solemnly denied having made any confession. It will not be strange if she denies it again within another week. It would be consistent with everything else in the business. But we do not believe the reopening of the scandal will be more than emporary. The public mind was made ong ago, and at great cost too to the public morality and religious reverence, and it is to be hoped the discussion will not be revived.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The New York World is fighting the imoudent and wicked declarations of the comnunists, of that city, who have recently been reinforced by the Frenchman, Megy, the murderer of the archbishop of Paris, with a zeal that promises to awaken the law abiding citizens. It puts the argument in this forcible shape: Every citizen of New York who consents with his eyes open to public methods which he knows to be lawless and wasteful, in order that he individually may silently evade his share of the burdens thus imposed upon the community, co-operates surely and not unconsciously with those who seek "the entire overthrow of the present social system," the announced program of the com-

If he did not say this but it was said for him by some sympathizing friend, what does it prove but that the spirit of Tweedism, rampant and defiant, holds itself strong enough still among us to challenge uncompromising hostility to a great public robber as an offense against the people?—[New York World.

THE RAGGED EDGE.

Mrs. Tilton Makes a Clean Breast of It.

But Beecher Declares Her Innocent of the Great Transgression.

The following letter from Mrs. Tilton appeared in the New York papers to-day: BROOKLYN, April 13.

Mr. Ira B. Wheeler:

My Desr Sir—A few weeks since, after long months of mental anguish, I told, as you know, a few friends whom I had bitterly deceived, that the charge brought by my husband of adultery between myself and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was true, and that the lie I had lived so well the past four years had become intolerable to me. That statement I now solemnly reaffirm, and leave the truth with God, to whom also I commit myself, my children, and all who must suffer. I knowfull well the explanations that will be sought for this acknowledgement: A desire to return to my husband, insanity, malice—everything, save the true and only one: My quickened conscience and asense of what is due to the cause of truth and justice.

justice.

During all the complications of these years you have been my confidential friend, and therefore I address this letter to you, authorizing and requesting you to secure its publication.

ELZIABETH R, TILTON,

BEECHER ABSOLUTELY DENIES The New York Tribune telegraphed Beecher a copy of the letter at a late hour, and received the following dispatch in reply:

"Waverly, N. Y., April 15"
"To the editor of the New York Tribune: I confront Mrs Ilton's confession with an explicit and absolute denial. The testimony to her own innocence, and tormine, which for four years she had made to hundreds in private and in public, before the court, in writing and orally, I declare to be true, and the allegations now made in contradiction to her uniform, solemn and unvarying statements hitherto made, I utterly deny. I declare her to be innocent of the great transgression.

HENRY WARD BEECHER."

HALLADAY NOT SURPRISED. Rev. Samuel B. Halladay, assistant pastor of Plymouth church, said he was not the least surprised at this development of scandal. He said some months ago, when he heard Mr. Tilton had gone to see his wife with her Mr. Thiten had gone to see his wife with her consent, that now we might look for the beginning of the end. It is susceptible of only one explanation, one which will naturally be given to any act of a poor crazy person who is putty in the hands of her hubband whenever he is with her. Her course at the beginning is at least such as destroys her weight as a witness for either side. It proves that she is a weak, insane woman. Her statement on any subject is worthless, and that's all there is about it.

THE DENOUEMENT EXPECTED.

A gentleman who was prominently connected with the defense in the Beecher suit, on being shown a proof-slip of the letter, after reading it carefully without evincing any surprise, looked up and said: "Well?" Upon being asked his opinion of it he at first declined to express any, but subsequently remarked that Mr. Beecher's friends had expected something of the kind for some time. As for the statement of Mr. Wheeler, to whom the letter was addressed, that Mr. Tilton did not know of its existence, the gentleman remarked: That would be the way he would go to work. Frequently during the winter, said he, Mr. Beecher has been applied to for money to aid Mrs. Tilton, the request, or demand, not technically coming from her nor purporting to be made with her knowledge or consent, but was for her benefit. This demand was accompanied by threats and intimations that if it was not met something would turn up. Mr. Tilton's influence over his wife is very great, this gentleman continued, and she can not resist it.

A gentleman living near Mrs. Morse and man continued, and she can not resist it.

A gentleman living near Mrs. Morse and Mrs. Tilton, and intimately acquainted with both, said: The events of the past few months have led me to believe strangements for a reconciliation between Theodore Tilton and wife have been completed. He frequently sent a carriage to Mrs. Morse's house for his sons, meeting them on Yates avenie, two or three blocks away, and after a drive of several hours the boys would return alone. On one occasion Mr. Tilton drove back to the house, but he did not alight. He has sent Mrs. Tilton money on several occasions. Mrs. Tilton went to Warwick, notwithstanding Mrs. Morse's denial, and the sons are my authority for the statement, and that she engaged rooms there for the summer, and that on Mr. Tilton's return from Europe, in August, with his daughters, the family will be reunited.

MR. WHEELER'S STATEMENT.

e Tribune says: "Mr. Wheeler called at the Tribune office yesterday afternoon with the original of the above document, and sub-mitted it for publication. There was no estion of the genuine character of the document, no matter under what circumstances it had been obtained and promulgated, and at Mr. Wheeler's suggestion and wish it was put in typo. A Tribune reporter subsequently had an interview with Mr. Wheeler, but he was very reticent. He stated he was a distant relative of Mrs. Tilton. He was very reluctant to be known in any con-nection with the matter, and in fact his only nection with the matter, and in fact his only connection was in the submission of the document for publication. / Mrs. Tilton had at once authorized and requested him to see that it was published. He added that he did not feel at liberty to state any of the circumstances which had led to the confession. About four weeks are the Tilton had verbally made a confession. ago Mrs. Tilton had verbally made a confession in detail to Mrs. Anna W. Field and fou other ladies of Plymouth church, stating all the circumstances of the various adulteries, and about the same time, she had written a letter to the same import to certain members of Plymouth church, probably the same pe This letter he could not furnish, and he said it was of such a confidential character that it was not likely to be published. At the same time, or about that received a private letter from Mrs. Tilton but he could not think of publishing it. The document given now to the public was all he was authorized to publish. The reporter asked Mr. Wheeler if Mr. Tilton knew of this confession, to which Mr. Wheeler replied: Emphatically not. Mr. Tilton says truly when he states he has not made overtures for a reconciliation with his wife. wish you would state this positively.

FRANK CARPENTER INTERVIEWED Frank B. Carpenter, the artist, in an inter-riew, stated there was no doubt about the gen-tineness of the letter. Mr. Ira B. Wheeler, he said, had been the private legal adviser and confidential friend of Mrs. Tilton all through Lawyers Shearman, Morris and Pryor re-fused to be interviewed.

Picture Frame Factory Burned. The large picture frame establishment of A. J. Nurre, on Broadway, near Eighth street, Cincinnati, burned at a late hour last night. Loss $70,000; fully insured. Confidence and Credit.

[These lines appeared in print in the "Hard Times" of 1857.] The day was dark, the markets dull,
The 'Change was thin, gazett's were full,
And half the town was breaking;
The countersign of Cash was 'Stop,"
Bankers and bankrupts shut up shop,
And honest hearts were aching.

When near the 'Change, my fancy spied, A faded form; with hasty stride, Beneath grief's burden stooping; Her name was Credit, and she said. Her father, Trade, was lately dead Her mother, Commerce, drooping.

The smile that she was wont to wear, Was withered by the hand of Care, Her eyes had lost their luster, Her character was gone, she said, For basely she had been betrayed, And nobody would trust her;

That honest Industry had tried To gain fair Credit for his bride, And found the lady willing; But ah! a fortane-hunter came, And Speculation was his name, A rake without a skilling.

The villain-was on mischief bent,
He gained both dad and mam's conser
Aud then poor Credit smarted.
He filched her fortune and her fame,
He fixed a blot upon her name,
And left her broken-hearted.

While thus poor Credit seemed to sigh, Her cousin Confidence came by, (Methinks he must be clever); For when he whispered in her ear She ebecked the sigh, she dried the tear; And smiled as sweet as ever.

Among his fac similies is a photograph of four heads, drawn side by side on a wall in Palenque—one a negro's, another a Caucasian's, a Malay's and an Indian's. It is thus supposed to be shown that, at some remote period in the world's history, the people of this continent held intercourse with those of Europe and Africa on the one hand ple of this continent held intercourse with those of Europe and Africa on the que hand and with Asia on the other.

THE PRESIDENTIAL TITLE.

The Bill Anthorizing a Test of its Legality.
Congressman Kimmell, of Maryland, introduced a bill in the house, resterday, to provide a mode for trying and determining, by the supreme court of the United States, the title of president and vice-president of the United States, to their respective offices when their election to such offices is denied by one or more states of the union. The bill was referred to the committee on the judiciary. It contains nine sections. The first provides that an action in the nature of a quo warranto may be brought to try the president's title when such title is denied by a state of the union. Second, It is to be brought in the name of the state and the specifications of the complaint are provided for. Third, Provides for the notifications to the defendant within forty days after the serving of the The Bill Authorizing a Test of its Legality. within forty days after the serving of the complaint. Fourth, If the defendant fail to appear and answer it may be taken as a general denial and the issue may be tried by the court, or if it so determines, by a jury composed of 24 names of the chief justices of all the state supreme courts shown in composed of 24 names of the chief justices of all the state supreme courts, chosen by lot, from whom 13 shall be chosen by lot and the only qualification of the juror shall be his oath that he is prepared to deliver an unbiased opinion. Five profides for the time of trial, six provides for the summoning of witnesses and says that investigation of the court shall be limited to the validity of she action of the canvassers or returning board of any state, by whose determination board of any state, by whose determination the appointment of electors was declared to have been made in receiving, rejecting and counting votes returned to them, and to the competency or eligibility of any person de clared to have been appointed an elector or ap clared to have been appointed an elector or ap-pointed to fill a supposed vacancy in the electoral college to act as such elector, and in such investigation the court shall feceive ev-idence tending to show the forgery, falsity, invalidity or error of any certificate of any gov-ernor, canvasser or other officer whomsoever. Eight declares judgment shall be rendered within ten days after the verdict, or close of the argument, if, it be no jury trial, and the the argument, if it be no jury trial, and the defendant, if adjudged not entitled to the ately. Nine provides that the act shall take effect immediately.

Hayes Bricks.

I was talking with Charley Foster to-day, when old Howe came poking along, looking very pale and emaciated. I remarked something to the effect that Howe's attack on the administration did not seem to have operated well on his own physical constitution. The reply was:

"No; the fact is Hayes carries a couple of "No; the fact is Hayes carries a couple of bricks concealed in the seat of his pantaloons, and when any fellow like Howe kicks him, it generally makes the kicker a little lame, but it don't affect Hayes worth a cent. Howe is just recovering from the kick he administered with such vigor. That's the Howe of it."

Then I knew just why it was that nobody else had kicked beside Howe, and why Hayes smiles so sweetly and parts his coat tails so invitingly when any one of his party raises a threatening hoof.

New Bulguaria.

The new principality of Bulgaria, according to the treaty of San Stefano, will comprise more than one-half of European Turkey. The terrifory detached from the Ottoman Empire, as nearly as can be calculated, will measure about 3,500 square leagues, a surface double that of Belgium and Holland put together. The new principality, however, will not be so thickly peopled; with all its additions it will scarcely number 5,000,000 of inhabitants, that is to say, about as many as Belgium. And yet the old provinces of Bulgaria and Roumelia were the most populous, fertile and industrious that Turkey possessed.

A special freight train was wrecked south of Windsor, on the M. K. and T. railroad, yesterday. Engineer Farnsworth was badly injured, and his fireman, Robert H. McCune, was killed instantly. The tender jumped the track, and McCune was thrown to the ground condensated by the track.

The Use of Dummies Abandoned in Philadelphia After a Year's Trial. [Philadelphia Becord.]

[Philadelphia Becord.]

After nearly a year's trial, the dummies on the Market street road have proven a failure, and they will be withdrawn after today. The most patient experiments have been made by the managers of the West Philadelphia passenger railway company, with the verdict in favor of horse cars. Steam cars, they say, are too heavy for the tracks, weighing seven and half or eight tous, and when laden, reaching nearly ten tons, while the ordinary passenger cars weigh when packed about five and a half tons. This additional weight has had the effect of destroying tracks and increasing the expenses of maintenance of way to a large sum. Not only have they found that the dummies wear out the track much faster than the horse cars, but they disjoint the sleepers and out the track much faster than the horse cars, but they disjoint the sleepers and bolts, and in a short time necessitate an entire febuilding of the road.

The ordinary tracks and road beds of the street car lines are said to be entirely too light for the dummies. This has been the experience of the Market street management. A heavier rail than is now used they think would be required. In fact, what is known as a "T" rail would seem to be the only one fitted for the "dummies. On one point there seems to be no dispute, and that is this, that when the dummies start and in their moveseems to be no dispute, and that is this, that when the dummies start and in their movements the oscillations are such as to cause the tracks to spread, and the jolts make the wooden pins and iron bolts in the sleepers and wooden supports start, thus causing a continual drain for repairs. Another objection to the present steam motor is the disagreeable odor which pervades it from the off and the escaping steam. This is annoying to passengers. to passengers.

Numerous letters have been received from at merous retters have been received from all parts of the country soliciting inquiries as to the practical workings of the steam cars, but from the experience obtained it has been impossible to answer the inquiries. Street railroad agents differ as to the cost of running railread agents differ as to the cost of running the dummies. Some find that, at the lowest calculation and under the most economical management, the steam car costs at least $1.50 per day more than the horse car. One of the officials of the Market street road holds that the experiment they have made with the dummies has not been an exhaustive and fair one as regards whether steam motors are cheaper than horse cars, because the company has not been paying the costs of repairs, but have merely been standing the expense of maintenance, for fuel, oil, engineers and conductors, while the entire receipts went to the company.

A Bad Street.

The condition of Kentucky avenue, West South street and South West street at their intersection at the old cemetery, is shameful. There is one pend, nearly in the middle of the streets, that would drown a child, and there are a half a dozen smaller ones about it. To cross in any direction is to wade ankle deep in mud, except where the pends are, and there it is something like knee-fleep in water, and the wading can only be attempted water, and the wading can only be attempted when no wagon is, passing, for it would splatter the middle side of a house. Some-body, the council, the ward councilman, the street commissioner, is to blame for this state of things, and a half day of actual work would mend it. It is about two squares across South street, at the end of Wiegand's garden, the only way of getting across being to go east to Missouri street and cross there and walk back. It is rough on funerals to have such ponds in the way to the grave.

On this showing the grand jury refused to indict Rosewinkle and dismissed the case. In the opinion of the physicians who made the post mortem examination, Bohlig would have died at any time from undue excitement, his brain being found in a very bad condition.

SING-SANG.

The Mossy-Backed Reporter, Aroused by the thought of Ginseng, Dreams over the Past and Bewalfs the Departing Glories of the Woods.

the thought of Ginseng, Dreams over the Past and Bewalfs the Departing Glories of the Woods.

The cultivation of ginseng is suggested by somebody or other, and among other reasons for it are two or three good ones. It can be cultivated here where it is, or used to be, indigenous and prolific, if is can be cultivated at all; it is in good demand always, the supply never filling the market; it commands a high-price, steadily growing higher. It is within in the memory of those who have fished in Pogue's creek and shot furkeys on the sight of Tinker street, that ginseng was once as abundant and natural a production as could be found in the woods. It was especially thick in the dense timber south of Merrill street about where Schmidt's brewery is, and west of that in the vicinity of South Illinois, Maple and South Meridian streets to the bluff bank of the river, it was as common as nettles of "pocoon." There was a little establishment for curing it near the base ball ground at a time when base ball was "town ball," and not deemed a nobler game than "bull pen," another globular diversion. James Blake owned it, and bought large quantities of ginseng of the farmers' boys, who called it "sang" with the same economy of breath that reduced Indianapolis in their utterance to "nopolis." A little hoe about three inches wide, with a "poll" or upper part divided into two prongs was used for digging it, and was called a "sang hoe." There are not many residents of ladianapolis, with its hundred thousand souls, who remember the "sang hoe." "Sang," the "sang factory" and the "sang hoe" have all gone the way of the world together. For a good while the drug stores maintained the trade in the slowly disappearing root, but if they buy it yet they get it from woods out of smell of the Sellers farm and beyond the rather indefinite stretch of the city before the panic knocked off its excrescences. There is none around in any reasonable reach today. There used to be lots of hazel bushes and nots in the lower part of the creek bottom, with we never miss the water that we we truns dry," and the vast store of pawpaws collected in the river bottoms, with a wealth of wild grapes and black mulberries, is going fast. Wild plums are gone, too, and "the woods," so to speak, "were full of 'cm." There is nothing left of native dainties but nuts, and the chief of those is going to make figurities, and the part is following. to make furniture, and the chief of tages is going to make furniture, and the next is following "on wheels." The "May apple" is abundant yet in spots, and unusually advanced and thick this spring, but it is almost alone and we could well spars it, for though its stalk is actual and present its fruit is becoming mytheles! At least it isn't as good as it was to be actual and present its fruit is becoming mythical. At least it isn't as good as it used to be to boys who got a half a day in the woods after driving the cows to pasture, sawing wood and spading up the garden. Ginseng was a favorite then, 'to eat, and 'Indian turnip' to give to others to eat. What boy of fifty or thereabouts has not been fooled on 'Indian turnip?' and "prickley ash berries,' pet of the old "Thompsonian" No. 6 steam practice? Ginseng might be grown from the seed if any can be found. It used to produce a very beautiful, pulpy little egg-shaped sort of cherry of a rich crimson color, and as strong of the ginseng flavor as the root uself. This, if the mossy-backed is not mistaken, contained the seed, and if cultivation acts so favorably on wild grapes, like the Catawba, or wild herbs. wild grapes, like the Catawba, or wild herbs wind grapes, like the casewoa, or wind nerts, like tobacco, or wild roots, like celery, it is not easy why the same process would not act favorably and profitably on ginseng, the victim of civilization. Dog fennel ran out the aromatic ginseng, the pure-blossomed, quaint-leaved flower, and now the rag weed has run out dog fennel. No wonder we sigh for the "good old time."

Bratane's return without assurance from Vienna and with advice from Berlin to yield will not strengthen the disposition to oppose Russia, although the feeling against her in the army as well as among the citizens is very bitter. #### THE STATE HOUSE.

A Proposition to Build it on Mississippi Street.

As a general reply to the architectural kickers who lay great stress upon rumored changes in the May state house plan, General Morris, speaking for the commissioners, says: "No change was ever made in the plan and it is not certain that any will be made, although we hold ourselves at perfect liberty to make any alteration in details we may think necessary or advisable, and would have done so whatever plan had been adopted." This certainly is sufficiently explicit, and shows the commissioners propose to manage affairs as they in their wisdom may deem best, regardless of architectural pressure.

At the meeting of the board this morning, Architect May being present, the question came up as to whether it would not be better to put the proposed state house flush to the Mississippi street line instead of locating it in the center of the two squares. The ground is to be staked off and the proposed change the center of the two squares. The ground is to be staked off and the proposed change looked at in all its bearings. The advantages at first blush appear numerous enough. It would leave a large space of ground between the building and Tennessee street, making a fine perspective, while the view of the ground and surroundings from north to south would be much improved, as it would give additional room for shrubbery and ornamentation, creating a

If the building is placed on the east line of Mississippi street, coal and other heavy freights, after the finishing of the building, could be unloaded on that street and not hauled through the grounds, while a saving of money could be effected in making the front on that street, a plain one, a part of the saving to be applied to beautifying the east front: About the building the ground line is to be elevated six feet above the street grade which, with a gentle slope to the street edges, will add to the beauty of the prospect and the appearance of the capitol. The 'objections that obtrude are that in putting the state house on the side of the lot the equilateral symmetry would be destroyed and the $2,000,000 capitol would have a distorted, lopsided appearance and be uttera distorted, lopsided appearance and be utterly devoid of architectural sympathy with the surrounding squares. #### THE ART RECEPTION.

hibition at the Art School Rooms, May

The grand opening reception of the Indiana art association, under the auspices of the Indiana school of art, has been definitely settled upon for Tuesday evening May 7th. The number of fine art works already secured for the first exhibition amounts to upwards of three hundred, among which are many choice gems. The Thirty-eighth Star is described by the press of other cities where it has been exhibited, as a magnificent work of one of America's greatest landscape painters. It is a typical landscape of the Cordilleras of Colorado, and is superb in effect and color. The canvas is large, exceeding somewhat in size. Bierstadt's Yosemite Valley and Church's Heart of the Andes, two pictures of kindred rank. A splendid picture of the Cavalier's Study, being a marvelously painted arrangement of still life, grouped in a quiet corner in a quaint old tapestried palace, will attract especial attention from the fidelity of the work and poetic suggestions it contains. A series of 25 landscapes, being studies in Tyrol and Berchtesgaden, in the Oetzthal and other celebrated localities of Europe, form another important addition to the collection. They are by a distinguished American artist who lately died in Europe.

Another acquisition that will be a great treat to our connoisseurs is a series of remark-

Another acquisition that will be a great treat to our connoisseurs is a series of remarkable pictures that partake of the character of historical compositions, though the events they illustrate are legendary. They are known as the Sleepy Hollow series, illustrating incidents in the life of Irving's Rip Van Winkle.

The reception is intended to be the event of the season, and to fitly inaugurate an undertaking which is enlisting the heartiest cooperation on the part of the best citizens, not only of Indianapolis but the state. The invitations to members and guests are being prepared and will be ready before the close of the week.

What We Trust Him For.

Captain Ritter is not often nonplussed, either in conducting a law suit or teaching a Sunday-school class, but an answer to one of his questions the other Sunday rather brought him down. The subject of the lesson was the dealings of God with man in every phase of life. Taking out a silver dollar he asked what that was, to which one little fellow responded: "Ninety-two cents." This staggered the captain, but he rallied and went on, until he asked, to further illustrate the extent to which God enters into the dealings of men: "What is the motto on the dollar?"

"In God we trust" responded one little.

"In God we trust," responded one little fellow who was posted.
"What do we trust him for?"
"For the other eight cents," said the ninety-two cent boy.

That ended the lesson, and the captain retired to cogitate.

HOME FOR THE AGED.

The Building to be Put Up by the Little

Sisters of the Poor. Mention was made a few days ago of the fact that a permit had been issued for the erection of a home for aged persons, to be built by the Little Sisters of the Poor. Yesterday afternoon, a reporter for The News inspected the plans for the proposed building at the office of D. A. Bohlen, architect. As designed, house will have a frontage on Vermont street of 132 feet and a depth of 70 feet on East street. It is divided into three divisions, a center building and two wings the latter are 25x70 feet; the former 82x32/2, with a projection in the rear for stair cases. a center building and two wings the latter are 25x70 feet; the former 82x32\(^2\)2, with a projection in the rear for stair cases. The center building recedes 18 feet from the front line of the wings, and is entered by a large doorway in the center. An outer stairway leads into each wing, at the angle formed with the main building. The style of architecture is quite plain, no attempt whatever being made at decoration or ornamentation of any kind. A small tower over the main entrance is the most prominent feature of the perspective. The house will be three stories in hight with basement and attic, the latter to be used for storage purposes only. It will be constructed of brick, with stone foundations and trimmings. Contracts have been let for enclosing the house which aggregate $15,789, and the officers are only waiting to hear from the mother house at Brooklyn before beginning work. It is necessary for them to know what amount of money can be relied on from headquarters, so as to determine whether to be the state of the states of the st

The Little Sisters of the Poor first put in an appearance in this city six years ago, beginning their work of caring for the aged poor at No. 77 Kentucky avenue. Thence they removed to their present building on East street, occupying the rear end of the lot where the new building is to stand. That has accommodations for about 50 persons, but the demands upon them have so inbut the demands upon them have so increased that the sisters find themselves unable to do for all who are placed in their charge. The new building will accommodate 120 persons, and will enable the sisters to extend their charity to many who deserve it and can not now receive it for want of room. This benevolent work is carried on so quietly that but few persons know of its ex-

Verdict in the Explosion Inquest.

After the impannelling of the coroner's jury yesterday in the matter of the death of John Cotheizer, who died from the effects of injuries received in the explosion of a boiler at the Eagle Machine works, Saturday afterat the Eagle Machine works, Saturday afternoon, the members visited the scene of the accident and examined the surroundings and inspected pieces of the boiler. A number of witnesses were examined, the principal ones being Charles Harwood, engineer, woo was a victim of the explosion, L. W. Hasselman, president of the works, C. A. Greenleaf,
Charles Hillman, another of the wounded,
Philip Meikel and Samuel A. Hamilton. It was shown by the evidence that the boiler was shown by the evidence that the boiler was not being tested, but that the engine was being adjusted by Mr. Harwood. The boiler was made of Swift & Co's. charcoal hammerwas made of Switt & Cos. charcoal nammer-ed No.1 iron, which is tested before being used, and not over 40 pounds pressure of steam was on when the explosion occurred. A verdict was returned of death from inju-ries received at the explosion, the cause of which is unknown to the jury.

Cotheizer was buried to-day. The other sufferers are in a favorable condition, Mr. Suitt's case being considered the most critical. Harwood still suffers greatly from his burns

The Greenley Case.

When Judge Buskirk sentenced Greenley to be hung, he allowed eight weeks in which the case might be examined by the supreme court, and by the governor in case it was brought to his attention by a petition for the brought to his attention by a petition for the exercise of executive elemency. Five of these weeks have already elapsed, and not until to-day was the record submitted to the supreme court, although it has been complete for some time. The object of this delay may be explained by a remark made by one of the attorneys for the defense a day or two ago, to the effect that as the record was so big a respite ought to be granted Greenley. If the record is so large why was nt it given to the supreme court at once, so that it might be the supreme court at once, so that it might be acted upon? It is this dilly-dallying of attorneys that makes the administration of law and justice such a sham and a reproach.

Mr. Hamilton, engineer at the water works building, and Sidney. Dyer, secretary of the company, will be retained in their respective positsons by the new management.

The persons who have been engaged for several nights in mysterious nocturnal digging, near the Noble street bridge, are searching for hidden treasure. A diagram has been found with directions how to dig to get the vessel buried there, the contents of which are thought to be valuable. The treasure was probably placed there by Pogue's run pirates, contemporaries of Capt. Kidd as he sailed.

The opening of the new millinery parlors of L. S. Ayres & Co., announced for yesterday, was a mistake, as it commenced this morning to last through to-morrow.
